TRACY THROTTLED.

Execution of Mary Reilly's Murderer To-day.

Special to the Star.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 4.—A special from Smithport states that every preparation has been made for the execution to-day of Andrew Tracy, a young lawyer of McKean County, for the murder of his cousin, Mary Reilly, September 15th, 1878.

His crime.
Miss Reilly was a beautiful and intelligent young lady, with highly respectable and wealthy parents. Tracy, who had been for several years a lawyer, became enamored of the woman and made an offer of marriage, which was accepted. As both were members of the Catholic Church, which prohibits the intermarriage of cousins, except by special dispensation, the father of the girl strongly opposed the union, and said he would prevent it if it cost him his life.

One of Tracy's brothers, a Catholic priest, also endeavored to persuade him not to entertain the idea of marriage. The barriers to his marriage with Miss R., it is supposed by his friends, further impaired his already weak mind, and while his sweetheart was walking with a female companion Tracy stealthily approached Miss Reilly, placed a revolver to her temple and shot her dead. Commutation of the death sentence was asked on the ground that the man was not sane when he committed the crime. The Commonwealth maintained that the murder was the result of jealousy, Tracy having been informed that Miss Reilly loved Thomas Carroll, who says he was engaged to be married to her.

Tracy was arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to be hanged October 9th, but the Governor granted a respite, and an application for commutation of sentence was made to the Board of Pardons. This was refused, and then followed an application to the Supreme Court for an allocution. This was also refused, and thus was at once crushed Tracy's last ray of hope.

McKean County is one of the extreme northern counties of the State, and Smithport, the county seat, is located at the termination of the McKean & Buffalo Railroad.

THE SCAFFOLD.
The scaffold upon which Tracy will be executed was yesterday placed in position. Instead of the usual wooden gibbet, a bar of iron is fixed to a ring fastened in the ceiling. To this a chain is attached, which is connected with the hangman's noose. Tracy will stand upon trap-doors, which are arranged to drop when the Sheriff cuts the cord.

Tracy's relatives visited him for the last time last night and took an affectionate farewell. Two of his four brothers are Catholic priests, and his family are all highly respected.

Tracy is almost completely prostrated by the mental strain he has undergone in consequence of his approaching end. He is greatly emaciated, having refused all food, and seems to be in constant torture both of mind and body.

He has tried several times during the past few days to obtain poison, but has been so constantly watched that his efforts were futile.

AWFULLY AWFUL.

Reno Rapped on a Window and Frightened a Girl Fearfully.

National Associated Press to the Star.

FORT MEADE, Dec. 4.—In the Reno Court-martial yesterday Miss Ella Sturges testified: "Was at home on the night of Nov. 10th; at 10 o'clock was in the library and sitting-room talking with mother; a person passing the front of the house would suppose I was alone. Heard a noise outside. Looked out without moving from the chair and saw something black move. Thought it was the gate then. Think now it was a cape. A little time after heard a noise and saw something. Thought nothing of it. A moment afterward heard a tapping on the window; looked in time to see a figure jump back. Told mother there was some one at the window. I stepped forward and looked out in the darkness. Saw a face gradually appear; was paralyzed with fright. Reno saw no one in the room but myself; his eyes being fixed on mine so frightened me I could not move. When mother saw the state I was in she said, 'Ella, run!' Only when I heard mother call father had I strength enough to run in the corner. Reno's face was against the glass; saw him a few seconds. My first impression was that he would shoot me if I moved; thought he must have had feelings toward father. Reno's face was pale; looked as though he was going to do something desperate; I stayed in the corner till father came down; when papa found me I was only able to say, 'Papa, Major Reno is at that window.'"

LITTLE LOTTA.

Is the Lively Actress a Maid or a Matron?

A Cincinnati Chap Who Says He is Her Husband.

National Associated Press to the Star.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—The question is raised whether Lotta, the actress, is a maid or matron. Erhard Zapf, a longshoreman, through a lawyer, has made a demand on her lawyer for $4,000, alleged by Zapf to have been squandered by her in the days of her early marriage. Lotta's lawyer responded by terming the man a blackmailer, but added in a postscript that his immediate demands could be met by his calling on her brother.

Zapf claims to be thirty-eight and a native of Cincinnati; that he married Lotta in this city in July, 1872, and that three children, Erhard, Lotta and John, are the result of the union. He says he wants money to support the children, and that he has received assistance from her before. He is strongly built, about five feet seven inches tall, and appears better educated than most of his class. He gives incidents in the life of Lotta and her family with such particularity that, if true or false, they could be readily determined by those intimately acquainted with her.

CARLOTTA'S CUPS.

Does the Charming Cantatrice Really Get Drunk?

National Associated Press to the Star.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 4.—Carlotta Patti, who was advertised to sing at the Mercantile Library Hall last Monday evening, failed to make an appearance, the excuse given being that the cantatrice was suffering from a severe cold.

She appeared Tuesday night, however, and filled her engagement with success. The real cause of her alleged illness is due to the fact, it is said, of her imbibing too freely of intoxicating drinks, and that on this occasion she was under the influence of liquor.

At Leavenworth, Kansas, a few days ago, she appeared upon the stage in such a condition as to render the performance a failure, producing considerable disgust on the part of the audience. After the entertainment she returned to her hotel and finished the night with a drunken carousal.

NATIONAL BASE-BALL LEAGUE.

National Associated Press to the Star.

BUFFALO, Dec. 4.—The adjourned meeting of the Directors of the National League of Base-ball Clubs convened at the Palace Hotel yesterday morning. A. H. Soden was elected a Director to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of J. W. M. Neff and the Cincinnati Club. The championship was awarded to the Providence Club on a tabulated statement submitted by the Secretary, only six games played with the Syracuse Stars being counted. On resolution the meeting decided that the Syracuse Stars had forfeited their membership in the league. Applications for reinstatement in the membership from Alexander McKinnon, of the Troy, and Wm. Craver, of the Louisville, were received, but both were denied.

The disputed Chicago-Cincinnati game which was to have been played August 13th was given to the Chicago by a score of nine to nothing, which gives the Chicago Club the third position and the Buffalo Club fourth.

At noon the delegates to the annual meeting of League assembled at the same place. Justin Thorner and O. P. Caffery were present to urge the claims of the Cincinnati Club. R. C. Hewitt represented the Nationals, of Washington, and H. C. Hancock looked after the interest of the Worcester Association. The Cincinnati Stars and the Nationals applied for membership. National Associated Press to the Star.

They had no idea of attacking the soldiers. The fight was precipitated by the soldiers. He didn't think they had any business there. Calorow said nothing about the Meeker massacre.
